Making Your Home Safe for the Holiday

"The stocking were hung from the chimney with care..." as the famous holiday poem reads, but did that care include making sure those stockings were flame retardant? The Greater Harrisburg Association of Realtors and its members offer the following home safety tips to ensure a happy and safe holiday season for you and your family.

Decorating your home or apartment for the holidays should be a joyous event, but at this time of the year, it's important to pay extra attention to safety factors, particularly those involving possible fires. Most homes are drier during the winter months due to heaters and fireplaces. This dryness, combined with increased electrical usage, open flames from holiday candles and generally a busier household, necessitates extra careful attention.

Carefully check all electrical decorations, particularly those that have been sitting in a damp basement for the past twelve months. The National Fire Protection Association reports that during the 1980s there were 560 structural fires annually involving Christmas trees. A dry tree and poorly wired lights can cause a disaster. Make sure that all electrical cords, lights and ornaments are approved by a testing agency, such as UL (Underwriters Laboratories), and are in good condition. Check for frayed ends or loose connections. Make sure that all extension cords are placed out of the normal traffic path in your home and that no furniture or other objects are resting on the cords. If you have pets, keep in mind their traffic patterns as well, and plan accordingly.

Keep your Christmas tree moist by checking the water level daily, selecting decorative lights that do not generate large amounts of heat and placing the tree away from direct sources of warmth such as radiators, televisions and hot air ducts. Tree lights should be on when an adult is present. Never leave tree lights on overnight. If you have an artificial tree, make sure it is fire retardant. Fire-retardant sprays is available for both artificial and live trees.

Scented holiday candles can make a home warm and festive. Like tree lights, though, it's important never to leave a candle lit when an adult is not present to supervise its burning. Make sure the base or candleholder is sufficient to maintain dripping wax, and take care that there is nothing near the burning flame that could ignite. Carefully extinguish the flame when leaving the room, and keep all matches and lighters out of the reach of small children.

The kitchen is often one of the busiest rooms in the house during the holidays. Take careful note that stove top burners have not inadvertently been left turned on. If you have small children in the house, you may want to keep them away from the kitchen during the busy meal preparation times. It is easy to become distracted when trying to prepare a number of food items. Ask an older child, visiting friend or relative to keep small children occupied while a meal is being prepared.

If there are no cigarette or pipe smokers in your household, but you anticipate entertaining guests who smoke, have an adequate number of ashtrays available, or request that guests do not smoke in your home. A stray ash can smolder for hours before igniting in a piece of furniture or carpeting.

Following the opening of gifts, bag all excess wrapping paper and ribbons, and remove to a metal garbage can or dump site. In the event of a household fire, excess paper will increase the speed at which a fire will spread.

If you home or apartment does not have smoke detectors, now is the time to have them installed. If you do have smoke detectors, check the batteries. If you're not sure how old the batteries are, replace them. It is better to be safe than sorry.

A small fire extinguisher is an important household item as well. Purchase one that will extinguish all types of fires, including electrical and grease fires. Keep it in a handy place in your home. In the event of a fire, you don't want to spend time searching for it. Review is proper usage with all members of your household. You may even want to practice outside on an imaginary fire. Make sure, however, that the extinguisher is full recharged.
